1. On 10 November 1951 a group of 450 physically fit young men, all Communist Party members and with at least primary school education, were in Nanking, from where they were to leave by rail for Manchuria to receive aviation training. They were recruited from the East China Military Area.
2. From early September to late October a total of 30,000 physically fit young men were conscripted from hsien under the jurisdiction of the Ningpo, Linhai, and Wenchow Military Sub-District Commands, Chekiang. Those from the Ningpo Sub-District were sent to the Ningpo area for training; those from the Wenchow Sub-District were sent to the Hungch'iao (121-02, 28-15) area.
3. About early October the Public Security Department in Chekiang sent 400 troops from Hangchow to the areas along the coast from Haimen to Wenchow, where they were attached to public security offices and sea defense units. As of 10 November they were in charge of inspection of cargo and passengers on all out-going and incoming vessels in those areas.
4. In late October, 200 men of the 91 Division, 31 Army, were in Chinchiang (118-34, 24-54). An anti-aircraft and a mountain gun battalion were in Koshan (木山) and Amoy.
5. In late October YANG, Commander of a Foochow unit of 1,000 men and of a secret service unit of the 31 Army, was investigating the military and political situation in southern Fukien. He had an investigation battalion and plain clothes men equipped with Mauser pistols and carbines who were circulating in the Changp'u (117-35, 24-06) and Haicheng (117-52, 24-27) areas. A combat unit under the command of FU Meng-hu (馮猛虎) was stationed in Amoy Park.
